

Originally a nurse attendant working toward an LPN license, Akia Blandon recently earned a doctorate of nursing practice. She is now the top clinical officer managing one of the largest healthcare facilities in the country (744 beds) and mentors nursing students at several colleges. The mother of five, she founded Pearls of Promise, a nonprofit organization that aims to empower disadvantaged or abused women and girls.