

Karen Kahn
CCO and head of corporate affairs
HP Inc.

Karen Kahn is HP Inc.'s head of corporate affairs and chief communication officer. With more than 25 years of reputation and storytelling experience, she is responsible for connecting HP to the social, cultural, and technological truths of our time. Kahn also leads the company's Sustainable Impact strategy focused on climate action, human rights and social justice, and digital equity. Prior to HP, she held executive roles at Broadcom and Sun/Oracle leading corporate marketing and global communications. Kahn also served as an EVP at two of the world's largest reputation firms, Weber Shandwick and Fleishman-Hillard. She began her career in journalism at the PBS documentary series FRONTLINE and Inc. magazine. Kahn has a B.S. from the Newhouse School at Syracuse University and an MBA from Boston University. She has served on a range of boards including the San Francisco Food Bank, the JCCSF and the Broadcom Foundation. She is the recipient of a range of awards including being named by ELLE as a Top Women in Tech.